

Verification of RME Safety and Environmental Instructions

In accordance with Section 8 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act, Rheinmetall Electronics GmbH is required to ensure that employees of other employers who work at the company have received appropriate instructions with respect to the risks to their safety and health during their activities at RME.

For this reason, I hereby confirm that I have read and acknowledged the contents of "6.04.VA.0003 Safety and Environmental Instructions for External Companies" in the version dated 7 May 2020. This content will be observed by our employees and, where relevant, by the employees of our subcontractors.

The relevant rules and information were communicated to the employees at my company and the employees of our subcontractors who perform work at RME.

If subcontractors are engaged, each subcontractor must fill out their own completed verification form.

In addition, we must comply with all relevant health and safety regulations, accident prevention regulations and generally accepted safety-related and occupational health rules during work on the company premises of RME. We will follow the instructions of the RME project leaders, site security, fire protection officer, and occupational safety specialist. In the event that the RME safety and environmental instructions are violated, we are aware that the work at RME may be stopped or employees or entire companies may be expelled from the premises until the instructions are adhered to. The contractor must bear any costs that are incurred as a result.

Our employees and the employees of our subcontractors are authorised to carry out professional work on behalf of RME. They have been trained with respect to hazards and protective measures and receive instructions at least once per year.

This verification must be updated every year and sent to your contact at Rheinmetall Electronics GmbH before starting work. In the absence of this verification, access to RME premises will be prevented.
